Turned Over Boy-Ed Documents to Government, Maj. Keehn Testifies

Washington, Jan. 10.—By permission of the War Department Major Roy D. Keehn, U. S. A. attached to the office of the Judge Advocate General, voluntarily appeared before the Overman Senate committee to testify from personal knowledge to the Americanism of William Randolph Hearst and to the patriotic services of the Hearst publications.

Major Keehn, wearing the uniform of his rank, explained at the outset of his testimony that for four years prior to his induction into the army he was the attorney and general manager of all Mr. Hearst's newspaper interests in Chicago.

The purpose of his appearance was to throw light on the editorial policy as reflected by the Hearst newspapers under the guidance of Mr. Hearst.

PAPERS TRULY AMERICAN.

Major Keehn read into the record a statement of Samuel Insull, chairman of the Illinois State Council of Defence, prepared especially for the committee. In this statement Chairman Insull declared that the Hearst papers had given his committee full and complete support, and that he knew them "to have been truly American and very patriotic."

A telegram from Secretary William G. McAdoo addressed to Major Keehn as manager of Hearst's Chicago newspapers, dated last October, was also read into the record. Secretary McAdoo

L GETS EXTENSION ON EVERETT SUBWAY

Construction of the subway and terminal facilities in connection with continuation of the elevated railway service to Everett must be begun by next July 1, and must be completed within eighteen months from that date. This is by a ruling of the Public Service Commission, which today granted the request of the company to extend the time for beginning construction six months from December 31. The company is required to file detailed plans with the commission by May 1. The actual building of the new line from Sullivan square is practically completed, and is expected to be in operation with a temporary terminal in Everett, within two months.

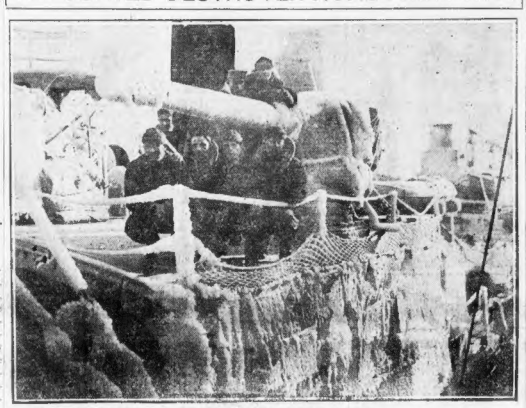
He had been in poor health for the past two years. Everett was born in Canada and was employed as an insurance agent. Medical Examiner Magrath was notified.

ICE-COATED DESTROYER HOME FROM WAR



The destroyer Little, which arrived at the Charlestown Navy Yard today, resembled a vessel coming from the Arctic regions. The warship passed through a gale last night, mountainous waves washing the decks and freezing on the vessel.

Coated with frozen spray to such an extent that she resembled an iceberg, the destroyer Little, in command of Lieutenant-Commander Roland Jordan, Jr., arrived at the Charlestown Navy Yard early today, from Brest, via the Azores.

Although the Little left Boston with the second fleet of destroyers last May and has been in the war zone ever since, the men of her crew were unanimous in declaring that the most trying time they had experienced was when the destroyer struck a sixty-mile gale off the Nantucket shoals last night. The vessel was buffeted back and forth between mountain-high waves which swamped her decks and left a thick sheet of ice.

The crew and commander of the Little were commended for excellent service in removing troops from the U. S. S. Covington when she was torpedoed and sunk off the Irish coast last July. Several depth bombs were dropped by the destroyer at the time in the hope of sinking the submarine.

The freezing weather failed to dampen the ardor of two mascots picked up by the crew. "Buno," a French bulldog purchased at Brest just before the return trip, refused to go below decks when the destroyer struck the storm off Nantucket, and remained with the watch until morning. "Jill," a canary smuggled aboard the Little at the Azores, sang for the first time when the destroyer struck the gale and has been singing ever since.

CITIZENS WILL FIGHT PLAN OF ANNEXATION

Indignation meetings planned in Winthrop and a general protest on the part of Revere, Chelsea, Everett, Somerville, Cambridge, Watertown, Newton, Brookline and Milton have followed the annexation proposal of Mayor Peters, by which those towns shall be added to Greater Boston.

Opposition from officials and citizens in these towns and cities followed swiftly upon the heels of the proposition. Cities that have successfully managed their own affairs appear to desire to continue running their own affairs.

Brookline is completely satisfied with its present form of government and desires no change. Winthrop believes itself to be one of the best governed towns in the State and opposes the annexation idea.

Watertown officials, through Selectman Frederick Robinson, wish to remain as they are. Watertown has no desire to affiliate itself with Boston nor to ask for a city charter.

Members of the Legislature representing the ten communities that would be affected predict the immediate failure of the bill in the House.

Letter to Tumulty Tells of Mr. Hearst's Desire to Aid the Government

Washington, Jan. 9.—The following letter to Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, was read into the record as evidence of Mr. Hearst's desire to aid the government in every possible way:

"September 12, 1918.

"Hon. Joseph Tumulty,

"Secretary to the President,

"White House, Washington, D. C.

"Dear Mr. Tumulty:

"Confirming my suggestions made to you in Washington the 8th and 11th insts., I said I believed that I was in a position to get into your hands the confidential files of Count von Bernstorff and Captain Boy-Ed through the use of Gaston B. Means, who, prior to our entering the war, was the confidential aide to Captain Boy-Ed.

"I base this opinion on information given to me by Means in the course of the last two months while he has been a witness in the King case in Chicago, which I tried in the Probate Court.

"While Means has been tried for murder, accused of forging this will and of being a German agent, I have found him to be truthful, accurate and absolutely dependable. He brought these matters to my attention, suggesting that documents which he could secure would be valuable for publication in the Hearst newspapers and would constitute the greatest news beat of the war.

"Means told me that he thought he could put me in touch with official German documents which would not only show that all of the reflections on Mr. Hearst by rival newspapers were untrue, but that the very papers making them had been involved with the German propaganda.

"Naturally I was interested in securing these documents, which he claimed were in these files.

"I later told Mr. Hearst about it, and he said if it was possible for Means to secure such documents it was his duty to turn them over to the President at once, instead of using them for newspaper purposes, and later, if it was determined that there was anything in the documents that should or could be published, he would naturally be glad to have his papers publish such matters.

"Having confidence in Means' integrity, and feeling that he is sincere in believing that he can locate these documents, I have decided to remain with him and work on the matter with him so long as there is a chance to find them.

"Believing as I do, I feel it is my duty, and my patriotic one, to do this, and I am sure he does; I do feel that our search ought to be permitted to proceed with co-operation, but without unnecessary interference from government agents, however, and that we should have any protection necessary to make legislative search for these documents successful. Respectfully yours, (Signed) "ROY D. KEEHN.

"P. S. Please acknowledge to Biltmore."

ENDORSED HEARST LOYALTY IN SPIRIT OF FAIR PLAY

New York, Jan. 10.—Hidden history of the formation and exploitation of the National Security League was revealed yesterday by S. Stanwood Menken, the deposed president, before the congressional investigating committee. The hearing was held in the Bar Association Building in this city. Mr. Menken testified that the inspiration for the organization came to him in the House of Commons in London, and that some of his chief assistants in promoting it were lawyers with British and corporation connections.

He told the committee that his own corporation clients were so many that he could not remember all, but named many public utility companies among them. He twice refused point-blank to give the names of individual clients, pleading legal privilege, and would admit only that he had been to England to settle a bankruptcy case. He expressed regret that at present he was without English government clients, though he still represents the London, Liverpool & Globe Insurance Company, $25,000 to the cause. The Carnegie Foundation displayed more liberality and gave $10,000 to the league, Mr. Menken testified, of which $50,000 is still to be paid over.

Representative Ben Johnson of Kentucky, chairman of the committee, raked the witness with searching cross-examination on his knowledge of America's pre-war legislation, but found it impossible to get more than vague opinions. Representative Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Edward N. Saunders of Virginia and Charles F. Hoavis of Nebraska also probed for facts on which the league based its political activity. They got only a mass of involved contradictions.

Other members of the committee present were Congressman Caraway of Arkansas, Congressman Brown of Wisconsin and Congressman Walsh of Massachusetts.

LYDECKER IN ERROR.

Colonel Charles E. Lydecker, who succeeded Mr. Menken as president when the inquiry opened that he had erred in his knowledge of the executive committee which directs the league's activities. He had stated to Washington that Professor William H. Hobbs and Dr. Claude H. Van Tyne held no office. He found out after, he said, that both were executive committeemen.

Mr. Menken named among his clients the great Van Sweringen syndicate, the estates in this city, the Cuban Sugar Mills, tobacco, steel, street railway, gas, realty and other corporations.

He named among the men most active in promoting the league Frederick R. Coudert, whom he said represented the British government as attorney, Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to Great Britain; Francis Vinton Greene, who, he said, was interested in the Canadian end of developing power from Niagara Falls; U. G. White, an engineer employed by foreign governments.

Among the attorneys for corporations so designated by the witness and active in the league's promotion was Luke R. Wright of the Memphis Street Railway Company. Mr. Menken rejected the suggestion that Alton B. Parker was a corporation lawyer, saying that the ex-judge usually acted as attorney for other lawyers on appeal. Henry L. Stimson, Herbert Satterlee and Lindley Garrison were others of national importance with whom he discussed the league program.

Chairman Johnson asked the witness for information regarding his family history. Mr. Menken said he was born in Tennessee, that his wife was the daughter of Arthur von Grieson, a native of Prussia, who founded the Legal Aid Society here. The chairman asked:

"Do you remember the day Captain Boy-Ed sailed?"

"I do not," said Mr. Menken.

"Do you recall when Von Papen left this country?"

"No."

"Were any of your family at the pier when either of them left?" persisted Congressman Johnson.

"I don't know," was the reply. "I don't think they would have anything to do with that crew."

The chairman asked whether Mr. von Grieson had made any public speeches since the war or had issued any statements for public information in that period. Mr. Menken said not.

In explaining why he resigned after commending Mr. Hearst's loyalty, the witness told about the organization of the educational bureau for patriotic activity, and added:

"I met William R. Hearst. At the beginning I had approached him as I approached every editor and asked for publicity in his papers.

"He promised we could have it. Later Hearst complained to me personally that the league had been attacking him as opposed to preparedness, and asked if I thought, considering the way the league had used his publications, that was quite fair.

"I knew the public agitation against Hearst and the menace of much that he printed, but I said I did not think it was fair. He said, 'Are you man enough to put that in writing?'

"I'm always ready to do that and made, so I thought, a simple statement of fact.

"I made that statement when Hearst's energetic newspaperman called one morning before I was out of bed, though I had made an appointment with him. I dashed off the statement. I would not give it to him orally, because we are all human. He (Hearst) immediately took that as a statement of character from the president of the National Security League and placarded his chain of papers with it throughout the land.

MELROY GETS BUSY.

"The result was that when the thing was published one of our members took the position that it was a terrible thing, and that I had endorsed Mr. Hearst. Robert N. McElroy took it up first. He said it would destroy the value of the educational campaign for which he had lined up hundreds of professors, and he feared it would be thought that the league was identified with Mr. Hearst, and it would mean a damage to the educational campaign. He was very insistent in his views. So was another man.

"I took the attitude that this would be only a three days' wonder, and that the thing would last a minute and be a flash in the pan and that it didn't amount to anything.

"But I was put in a position of whether McElroy should retire with his group of professors and endanger the work that had been my life object, and I should be in a position of having a cabinet differ with me—or that I'd retire for the time being.

"So I thought it would be better to bow to the ill-advised views of temperamental gentlemen who ought to have known that my whole idea was only a device for me to get out. I decided to hang to the work and retire. I'm still a member of the league and head of the Manhattan branch."

Chairman Johnson asked if Mr. Menken had talked with Mr. Hearst after he issued the first statement on the latter's loyalty. The witness answered that since the American's use of the statement, all conversation had ceased.

THOUGHT HE WAS RIGHT.

Congressman Harris asked if he believed the statement would be printed when he issued it and requested light on the alleged "misuse" of it. The witness answered:

"Of course I assumed it would be published. I didn't give it to be put in the files. Before it was published I showed it to McElroy. He said I had made a great mistake. Later I heard other people criticize it. I think my friends in the league thought I had made a mistake. I thought I was right.

"The statement was misused by putting the head on it 'National Security League Endorses Hearst.' I had not endorsed him. I was willing to state the facts on what Hearst had done. Nothing was further from my mind than to endorse Hearst."

Congressman Harris pointed out that the statement consisted solely of an alleged headline, which would be corrected by a reading of the contents. If correction was needed, and the italicising of phrases deemed most important by the editor, Mr. Menken continued:

"Hearst was a very strong advocate of preparedness in the first few months, for seasons I know not of. He said our speakers were attacking him."

"Did McElroy so instruct them?" asked the chairman.

"I think it was C. A. Bill. Everyone was pounding Hearst then, and our men thought it would be a popular thing. They pounded him on the England and Germany question. Members of the league said Hearst was taking up with Germany."

"Who said that?" asked the chairman.

Mr. Menken said:

"I can't recall, but the spirit was there. They used Hearst and his cartoons and one of his best journalists, Mr. Stanwood. We had published his cartoons in our magazines all over the country.

"I was bitter against him because of his anti-English attitude. But that was no reason why I could not be fair. I felt that Hearst had misset forth the fact in his newspapers that Germany was the aggressor and an outlaw in this war."

Mr. Menken read extracts from a printed statement attacking Mr. Hearst, explaining that he had prepared it—after he had resigned—for publication, but had not made it public. He refused to give a copy to the New York American reporter. The printed matter was signed "The National Security League," and Mr. Menken said he did not wish to give it out because it really was not issued by the league, but by himself personally.

Congressman Harris asked if he had prepared it to quiet criticism by showing it to friends after his statement commending Mr. Hearst's activity on preparedness. He denied this, adding:

"I resigned because seven of the fifty-two men on the executive committee thought the league might gain an advantage by my resigning. I felt that I should not embarrass the work."

Mr. Menken was asked if he had drawn the charter for the Carnegie Corporation. From which college professors, including those assembled by Dr. McElroy, may derive pensions, before answering he turned to Henry West, secretary of the league, and inquired:

"Which one did we get all the money from?"

ONE GIFT OF $150,000.

Mr. West murmured a reply and Mr. Menken said:

"Oh, yes: then it was the other one. Yes, I drew the charter of the Carnegie Corporation. The corporation controlled the Carnegie Foundation, which Mr. Carnegie endowed to give college professors a hope of retiring on a pension at a certain age. The Foundation gave the league $150,000.

"We asked the Rockefeller Foundation for money, but were refused. Later John D. Rockefeller gave $5,000 himself and $5,000 again, and then $25,000 to the educational work. I believe Dr. McElroy, our educational director, went with me to see Starr J. Murphy, but he refused because we had work other than educational in our plans. We have not yet used up the Carnegie Foundation money and $50,000 is still coming to us."

Reverting to the political activity of Mr. Menken and his associates, Congressman Harris asked why he had never sought to enter Congress to correct what he described as abuses there. The witness replied:

"When I was president of the Democratic League the nomination was offered and I refused. The present conditions in Congress have endangered the success of the American experiment in democracy. We have made democratic institutions less a goal among European people."

"Do you think the United States stands in bad odor as a democracy today?" demanded Congress man Harrison, and Mr. Menken answered:

"Our failure to dignify constitutional government in the fullest degree has had its reflex in the failure of European peoples to accept democratic institutions."

HARRISON DIGS DEEP.

Mr. Harrison pressed the point deeper, saying:

"But don't you think, considering the part America played in the war and the settlement of the war, that the United States stands in higher esteem today than it did before the war? Can't you say that much for your own government, sir?"

Mr. Menken answered slowly.

"I don't know. The people of the United States may stand higher. I think probably they do. In the eyes of European nations. But wait till we see what happens in reconstruction. Reconstruction is a more difficult task than the waging of war."

Congressman Harrison, in amazement asked:

Do you really think reconstruction will involve a greater test of democracy than the principles for which our government has stood during the war?"

Mr. Menken's answer was:

"Yes!"

In discussing the congressional preparedness, Mr. Menken asserted, first, that the resignation of Lindley M. Garrison as Secretary of War was due to his failure to get action to prepare for defence. Then he contradicted his own testimony later, and said the resignation was due to a difference of opinion between President Wilson and Secretary Garrison.

He charged that the refusal of Congress to pass defensive measures compelled President Wilson to go through the country making speeches to rouse public opinion to the necessity of defence. Congressman Stevens confirmed him with the President's statement at that time emphasizing America's neutrality and urging that no great military expansion be approved. The Congressman challenged the witness to name one piece of legislation asked by the President—after he had resigned—for Mr. Menken could not name one measure. Pressed as to naval preparedness, which he had criticised, he could not recall a single instance in which Congress had refused to act on the request of the President or of the Navy Department.

GOVERNMENT THANKS HEARST FOR HIS AID

Adds enthusiastically commended the services in behalf of the Liberty Loan being rendered at that time by the Chicago Herald-Examiner.

Not the least interesting feature of Major Keehn's testimony was the reading of a letter addressed by him on September 12, 1918, to Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson. Especial interest attaches to this letter, as it reveals for the first time that it was through Mr. Hearst's instrumentality that the secret and confidential files of Captain Boy-Ed, the recalled German naval attache, were turned over by Gaston B. Means to the military intelligence.

For this particular patriotic service, General Churchill, chief of the United States army intelligence, thanked the management of the Hearst papers on behalf of the government. It appears from the letter of Major Keehn to Secretary Tumulty that Major Keehn, as an attorney, had appeared in the King will case in behalf of Means, who had informed him of the existence of the Boy-Ed papers. Means suggested the documents would be valuable for publication in the Hearst papers as constituting the greatest news beat of the war, in addition to refuting certain reflections on Mr. Hearst made by rival newspapers.

The witness stated that when he discussed the subject with Mr. Hearst, the latter immediately said an effort should be made to secure the documents and turn them over to the President at once, instead of utilizing them for newspaper purposes. Hence the letter to Mr. Tumulty.

Major Keehn added that in co-operation with Means the search for the documents was conducted and several weeks of his time and the time of others were consumed, and Mr. Hearst personally paid the expenses. Means has already told the committee how he turned over to the custody of Captain Lloyd of the Military Intelligence, documents in question.

The witness detailed the complete history of the purchase of the Chicago Herald and its merger with the Examiner, adding that he spoke from personal knowledge as he conducted the negotiations. He said the price paid was $450,000, payable in equal annual deferred payments and not a cent of the purchase price was paid in cash. The contract of sale was on file in the recorder's office of Cook County, Illinois, and was a matter of public record. All of the stock of the purchasing company, the Illinois Publishing and Printing Company, was then and is now owned by Mr. Hearst, declared the witness.

NEW CLEWS IN MAINE SLAYING

Suspect Saw Mrs. Brown Before Her Identity, Say New Witnesses

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Rockland, Me., Jan. 10.—Gradually the element of mystery which has surrounded the murder of Carolyn Welt Brown is vanishing. With each succeeding day the discovery of new evidence tends to lighten the load of the officers engaged in the investigation.

Evidence gathered early today and placed at the disposal of County Attorney H. L. Withee by a Boston newspaperman is deemed of the utmost importance. If this evidence is substantiated, and those who tell the story correct, the authorities have no other avenue to take than order the arrest of a suspect.

The statements of these new witnesses indicate that one man of this community had knowledge of the fact that Mrs. Brown had been murdered prior to the discovery of her body. Her body was found in the field near the Stuart house, off Limerock street, at 7:30 on Tuesday morning, December 31.

According to these witnesses three in number, one of the suspects entered their place of employment at 7:15 and greeted them with the announcement, "Have you heard that Mrs. Brown being murdered?" His manner was one of excitement. He continued, stating that there were "700 people up there at the place."

It was not until an hour later, at 8:30 to be exact, that a positive identification of the victim had been made by her son-in-law, William H. Rhode. In the meantime several persons had seen the body, but none had been able to identify it. The statement by this young man, fifteen minutes before the evidence to bring about the two laborers, tends to indicate guilty knowledge and, if correct, provides the needed evidence to bring about an arrest.

Wounded Man Now Sought by Police Officials as Rockland, Me., Slayer

By PAUL HARRIS DRAKE

Rockland, Me., Jan. 10.—Local, county and State police are searching for a man with a recent wound in the hope of connecting such a suspect with the revolting murder of Mrs. Carolyn W. Brown, whose mutilated body was found in a vacant lot within fifty feet of a public highway on the morning of December 31.

Led by the trail of fresh blood drops leading at intervals of fifteen feet for a distance of 110 feet from the crime in a northeasterly direction, police are convinced that Mrs. Brown's assailant fled from the scene suffering from a cut or scratch.

Nothing but an open wound can account for the drops of fresh blood leading from the spot where the body was discovered. The temperature on the night of the murder was 4 degrees above zero. With this fact in mind, the combined efforts of the authorities engaged in the search for the case are directed to locating a wounded suspect.

It is thought that the man sustained a cut on his hand by coming in contact with a brooch pin on the clothing of the dead woman.

The police are devoting every effort to finding a man who was last met worn by the dead woman on the night she met her death. During the autopsy conducted by Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath a portion of the woman's permanent hair net was first missed. Parts of the feminine foible were found clinging to the cuts found over the victim's body. Other parts were imbedded in the ugly wounds on the sides and top of her head. Pieced together all of the known portions of the hair net still fall short of making the completed article.

Every co-operating society, such as Salvation Army, Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., and other bodies, together with high officials in the army and navy have eagerly come forward to give commendation and praise to the patriotic and public spirit shown by the American.

The American's slogan is practical patriotism. It wants to show returning men some substantial appreciation by giving them work. The American has opened its Situations Wanted columns free of charge and without obligation of any sort.

Benjamin B. D. Chandler, aide of General Edwards, in his commander's absence, said: It is an excellent idea. The American deserves very much success. I think the men will encounter some difficulty in securing positions, and think will be a wonderful help. The American is widely read, and will be a successful vehicle for securing employment for returning soldiers. It is in line with the patriotic spirit of Boston which has characterized the American during the war.

Philip A. Nordell, assistant adjutant-general U. S. R. Department of Massachusetts: I consider this a public service, that should be commended and is commended by the veterans of 61-65. We trust and hope it will.

Colonel Adam Gifford, Salvation Army: This is valuable, generous and patriotic service. I cannot speak too highly of the American's endeavor in this direction.

Major John W. Hyatt, on staff of General Edwards' Department of Northeast: Certainly gives the returning soldier a position. He has done his work. You were glad to have him go to defend his country. Now when he comes back with glory, give him a job. He is entitled to it and worthy of what he has done for the country. Your plan for employment is a grand one. Boost it!

Judge W. J. Day, State Department, K. of C.: Your plan is excellent. In keeping with the K. of C. spirit, every thing free.

W. M. Danner, Jr., secretary Northwestern Department, Y. M. C. A.: We are glad to see the splendid offer of the American. Alden was charged with stealing the coat from the former Governor's car while the chauffeur was in a luncheon, and McLoughlin with being an accomplice. Joseph Everett, the chauffeur, saw the pair and had them arrested.

Revere Slayer Drank at Several Bars, Says Taxi Man

Captain William E. Tappan of the Revere police received a telephone call today from John Linnehan, a taxi driver who has a stand in front of the Quincy House. Linnehan, according to his story, is the man who drove Vesta Clarke, the sailor who has confessed to the double murder of the Smith woman and her child in Revere, on Wednesday. Clarke was driven from a North End hotel to Revere, where he shot himself after killing the woman and child.

Linnehan told the police his fare visited several barrooms, where he spent money lavishly and bought for everyone in sight. Then he decided to go to Revere.

He said he was afraid the police might suspect him of relieving Clarke of the large sum of money he was said to have in his possession.

At noon today physicians at the Frost Hospital, where Clarke is dying from a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head, gave up all hope of his recovery.

McCARTHY CASH FOR ADOPTED DAUGHTER

Will of Former Port Surveyor Allowed; Disposes of $125,000

As the result of agreement, Miss Grace McCarthy will receive substantially all the $125,000 of the late Jeremiah J. McCarthy, at one time surveyor of the port of Boston, and who, when he made his will, supposed that Grace McCarthy was his legally adopted daughter, to whom he left his entire estate.

Preliminary to a proposed contest of Mr. McCarthy's will by his brother, Judge of the Suffolk Probate Court was asked to determine whether Miss McCarthy was a daughter of the testator. Upon all the evidence introduced at hearings, which lasted for several days, Judge Grant decided that Miss McCarthy had not been legally adopted.

Under that decree, several months ago was entered, negotiations have been in progress which not only will give to Miss McCarthy the money it was intended she should have, but her legal status as an adopted daughter of Jeremiah J. McCarthy has been settled by the Supreme Court in a decree given by Judge DeCourcy. Today Judge DeCourcy formally allowed Mr. McCarthy's will.

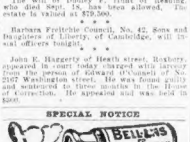
SPECIAL NOTICE



PLAGUE TAKES 37 VICTIMS IN 24 HOURS

Increase in Deaths, but Decrease in Number of New Cases for Boston

An increase in deaths from influenza and pneumonia and a decrease in the number of fresh cases was reported to the Health Department for the past twenty-four hours.

There were eleven deaths from pneumonia, an increase of seven over yesterday. There were twenty-six deaths from influenza, an increase of but one over yesterday.

Today's new cases of influenza number 212 against 265 yesterday, showing a substantial drop. New cases of pneumonia number ten against yesterday's twenty-nine.

The increase in pneumonia deaths, according to Commissioner Woodward, is not unusual for this time of year. He points out that at this time last year (a normal year) that the average daily death report from the disease was seven, while at this time it is but an average of eight. Pneumonia is more prevalent at this time of the year and the present figures show no great increase over those of a year ago, says Commissioner Woodward.

Commissioner Woodward said:

"It is well to remember that the precautions advised for the avoidance and the prevention of influenza are equally to be advised for the avoidance and prevention of the pneumonia and of the diseases generally to which broncho pneumonia is a sequel, such as whooping cough and measles.

"These precautions are those that look toward the prevention of the transfer of mouth and nose secretions from infected persons—carriers and patients—to the mouths and noses of susceptible persons who are not yet infected, together with the maintenance of the health of the individual at its highest possible standard, through right living. The rules of which have been so often pointed out in connection with the advice that has been given looking toward the prevention of influenza.

"The epidemic is gradually abating with the advent of colder weather and the number of new cases reported at the Health Department on Thursday was 1,249, compared with 1,300 on Wednesday. The total number of deaths was 25, as compared with 45 on each of the two preceding days.

Pratt's "Brooks" Worse Than St. Gaudens', Say Artists

The St. Gaudens statue of the late Bishop Phillips Brooks in Copley square is bad enough to be removed.

But any Brooks statue by the late Bela Pratt would be worse, in the opinion of two Boston artists, Ernest Major and Daniel O. Brewster.

Mr. Brewster, as instructor at the Normal Art School, compares the Pratt figures in front of the Public Library to "a pair of nonsense women on floating grape-fruit."

Mr. Major suggests a soda fountain in place of the St. Gaudens work, but prefers the St. Gaudens to one by Pratt.

The Rev. Frederick R. Allen, who was assistant rector of Trinity under late Bishop Brooks, defends the St. Gaudens statue on the ground that it is "true to life" in failing to recall the actual appearance of Bishop Brooks.

A petition filed with the Supreme Court requesting permission to remove the statue and, in its place, substitute a piece by the late Bela Pratt, is signed by President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University, the Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon, Edward H. Clement and the Rev. Leighton Parks.

These four men comprise a majority of the surviving committee of original contributors to the fund raised for the erection of the St. Gaudens statue.

The Phillips Brooks statue does credit neither to the memory of the bishop nor to the memory of the sculptor, in the opinion of Louis Kronberg, a member of the art committee of the Boston Art Club, painter of national reputation and creator, among other masterpieces, of "The Ballet Girl."

NOT BEST WORK OF MASTER.

"The removal of the Brooks statue would be a good thing for Boston if something better were substituted," said Mr. Kronberg. "The work of Bela Pratt is not the best work of the master. Pratt's Brooks would be a benefaction."

Ernest Major, instructor in life drawing at the Massachusetts Normal Art School, was found by an American reporter busily engaged in rehearsing a bevy of giggling art students who on next Thursday night will appear in the nude in the miracle play to be given at the school. Yet Major, an individual who fling back over his shoulder caustic comments on Copley square art.

"Remove it, by all means! Put a soda fountain there," he exclaimed hearsay when asked his opinion as to the removal of the statue. "It's terrible."

TWO ARE SUFFICIENT.

"But you have not heard the whole story," he was told. "There is to be a companion piece to the St. Gaudens statue, also by Pratt."

"Then leave St. Gaudens' there, leave it there and don't look at it," the painter flung over his shoulder.

Daniel O. Brewster, head of the department of life drawing at the Normal Art School, two figures by Pratt in Copley square would be "a menace to the American people."

"Two figures by Pratt in front of the Public Library should convince the people of Boston that anything by Bela Pratt would be a calamity if put up now at Trinity Church. Many times when I passed the Public Library before the Pratt figures were put up to think that some day the open space would be filled with active figures of some sort. And see what is there now—A pair of nonsense women on floating grape-fruit. The Pratts in Copley square are sufficient."

"POOR WORKMANSHIP."

The specific faults found by Boston artists, sculptors and art critics in the St. Gaudens Phillips Brooks on Trinity facade are a lifelessness in the figure of the Christ and poor workmanship in the figure of Bishop Brooks, a blanket criticism as "poor workmanship."

It is the opinion of some the presence of the figure of the Christ is entirely unnecessary and appears to have been placed behind the lectern at the last moment.

Many of these men who have criticised the statue say the Christ is placed in a ridiculous position in the grouping. One such sculptor, Robert Baker, formerly of St. Botolph street, but now of Washington, where he is engaged in the work of modelling

Experts at Odds Over 'Brooks' by St. Gaudens

Rev. Frederick R. Allen, assistant rector of Trinity under late Bishop Brooks:

The St. Gaudens statue is true to life.

Ernest Major, instructor in life drawing at Massachusetts Normal Art School:

Take it away. Put a soda fountain there.

Louis Kronberg, celebrated artist, member art committee Boston Art Club:

Removal of St. Gaudens' Brooks would be a benefaction.

artificial faces for disfigured soldiers, was called in an article in the International Studio magazine one of the great sculptors in the country. The magazine in the same article criticised Boston art patrons severely for what they termed their lack of discernment in not recognizing Baker, who is an Englishman.

Baker says that the space where the Brooks statue now stands would be better a vacant spot. The figure of the Christ, he says, is entirely out of place and should not be in the set. He says the lone figure would appear to much better advantage. The figure of the Christ should stand alone, anyway, he says.

"And in its present position, were I Bishop I should remove myself as far as possible from the public gaze," declared

CAPRONI TO TRY TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHT SOON

Building Big Triplane Which Will Carry Crew of 20 in Milan Factory

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Milan, Italy, Jan. 8 (via Paris, Jan. 10).—Transatlantic flight is easily possible now, providing weather conditions are favorable, and I expect to make such a flight very shortly. Within a year or more it ought to be an easy thing to cross the Atlantic by airplane, no matter what the weather conditions are.

With one hand affectionately patting his new triplane Gianni Caproni made this prophesy as lightly as if he were predicting a flight to Paris.

It was in his big factory at Milan that the interview took place, and the machine before him was the one he is building in the hope of crossing the Atlantic.

It is ready for assembly, including the pontoons to float it in case of accident.

TO CARRY 20 IN CREW.

The particular machine Caproni expects to man with twenty hands. But this, he says, is merely to be a test flight. When he gets ready for transatlantic trade he is going to build the fliers one capable to seat from 50 to 100 persons.

Caproni was the first man to apply heroic size to aeroplanes. His machines are already familiar to America. This was easy by Italian aviators in his flight to Vienna, many were employed to harass the Austrian navy across the Adriatic.

He is dreaming of still greater war chines, and apparently he will not be satisfied until his fliers attain something like the proportions of a transatlantic steamship.

The machine now building is a triplane more than 100 feet, while when the wings are spread and with an enclosed house capable of holding the passengers and crew in any weather.

HAS THREE LIBERTY MOTORS.

It is already equipped with three Liberty motors, so arranged that any two will be able to make good progress and keep the machine in the air.

The inventor says the Liberty motor is the best airplane engine with which he has experimented. Nearby stood a machine with an enclosed cabin, which had spent all afternoon flying low over Milan in honor of President Wilson's visit.

Caproni is a small and modest man, thirty-two years of age. He was educated at Munich and Liege. His ambition is to be the first man to make a practical passenger and mail carrying transatlantic machine, and he is sure that by making the machines big and powerful enough the air will be made as certain an avenue of transit as land or sea.

COSTLY PLANES HOLD UP FLYING PLAN AT HARVARD

The ardor of the Harvard airmen to form an active aeronautical club has been somewhat dampened by the announcement that the Government is not yet ready to grant pilot's licenses, and the price for one of the War Department's planes is $1,000. The ground is marking time until conditions are more favorable and is having tentative plans drawn for a hangar on Soldiers Field.

LIFT OUT ANY CORN

No Humbug! A few drops and corn lifts out with fingers—No pain

Tiny bottles of the new ether compound called freezone can now be obtained for very little cost at any drug store here.

This drug freezone is the discovery of a Cincinnati man. It is applied on, over or under the painful corn, and instantly the soreness ceases and shortly the corn loosens so much that you lift it right off.

This marvelous drug dries the moment it is applied and simply shrivels the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissues or skin.

Just think of it! Not a sore corn or callus on your foot or toes after using freezone a few moments. Not even sensitive after applying it. It never burns, smarts or even stings.

Ask at the store for a tiny bottle of freezone for a few cents, enough to remove every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, and the calluses from bottom of feet. It is almost magical, but entirely harmless.

POLISH SOCIALISTS WILL PLAY LONE HAND, SAYS DR. DILLON

DEMAND ACCEPTANCE OF FULL PROGRAM FIRST

Dr. E. J. Dillon, one of the world's greatest journalists, will report the peace proceedings, upon which the eyes of the world are now centred, for New England readers exclusively through the columns of the Boston American. Dr. Dillon will write upon the preliminaries leading up to the main Peace Conference and upon the Versailles sessions.

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Special Cable to the Boston American and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

(Copyright in the United States and Canada by the Philadelphia Ledger Company. Copyright in Europe by London Daily Telegraph.)

Paris, Jan. 10.—The Polish situation is absorbing general attention. The sudden kidnaping of the ministers in Warsaw and the temporary disappearance of the cabinet are events that provide food for reflection. They were not wholly unexpected. The dissatisfaction in the country was so intense that even here it was taken for granted that the Pilsudski cabinet, which represented a mere minority and arbitrarily dealt with private property and adopted a series of crude measures without sequence or plan, must shortly make way for a government on a broader basis representing the whole country; but whether that change would be due to force or to negotiations was known to nobody.

DR. E. J. DILLON

The Polish committee in Paris has received no official information whatever respecting the attempted coup d'etat, but is authoritatively informed that, for some time past, a movement has been afoot in Warsaw to create a thoroughly national council comprising prominent members of all parties which will proceed immediately to hold elections to the provisional diet.

I am convinced that, despite the strenuous efforts now being made there, the Socialists will hold obstinately aloof because they have announced that they will enter no cabinet which does not accept the Socialist program in its entirety.

The coming national council, therefore, will be composed of all groups except the Socialists, unless these reconsider their decision at the last moment.

ELECTIONS JANUARY 26.

The Polish committee here has had consultations with a delegation from the Pilsudski cabinet without reaching any decision and further meetings will be held. The attitude of the delegates will doubtless be swayed by the course of events in Warsaw. I am enabled to state the program of the national council as follows:

The first step will be to hold elections on January 26, not, however, as Pilsudski intended for a constituent assembly, but for an extraordinary provisional national diet. The motives that determined this decision are obvious. The disorganized condition of the country is unfavorable to elections for an assembly on whose policy the future destinies of the nation will depend. Scores of thousands of Polish citizens are mobilized in France, Italy and elsewhere about the nationality of hundreds of thousands of whom doubts arise, besides which the frontiers of the country are not yet delimitated, nor is there time to remedy the fundamental defects.

Statesmen who undertake to sweep away the tangled situation in which the war and sudden emancipation has left the Polish nation must have something organic to set in its place by which law and order can be maintained and progress made possible and not hastily improvise arrangements in the dominant humor of a disorganized population.

RADICAL POLICY LIKELY.

The internal policy of the new government will be inspired by radical principles and democratic conceptions and the creation of institutions in harmony with these. Definite settlement of all the problems to which the new spirit has imparted actuality will be aimed at with the least delay compatible with deliberation and thoroughness. Concrete measures will be thought out carefully, framed systematically and inscribed on the statute book legally.

While ready for unending experiments, the new government will adjust measures and institutions declared to be durable, not to transient situations, however pressing, but to the permanent needs of all classes of the nation. These are the views held by Paderewski, who has been sent for, to come to Warsaw and will probably play an important role in the national council which will succeed the Pilsudski Socialist cabinet.

Mr. Paderewski has requested Pilsudski to dispatch troops to the succor of the population against the Germans in Posen, where the Polish general possesses only 9,000 men. The British government has sent a mission to Warsaw to enter into semi-official relations with the Polish government which happens to be in power.

GERMANS CAUSE DISSENSION.

The Temps publishes an important article from its own correspondent in Poland who recounts his observations made on the spot and attributes the stories of persecution of the Jews in Poland to the Germans, who are straining every nerve to sow the seeds of dissension among the various elements of the population and between the Polish and western governments. He states that the wandering Jews are partly spreading the gospel of Lenin. Warsaw is one of the centres occupied by them, and others like them will tomorrow can inaugurate a reign of blood and fire in Poland. The correspondent adds, however, that the better part of the Jewish population has long been resident in the kingdom and is animated by sentiments as national as those of the Polish race are anti-Bolshevist. The first plenary sitting of the peace conference cannot take place on Jan. 15 owing to the impossibility of dispatching invitations in time. The Siberian government is preparing a memorial to serve for representation at the peace conference.

No Raise for Women

No attempt will be made to raise the salaries of the army women field clerks at the Northeastern Department, although a rumor of that kind is in circulation. They are now receiving from $1,900 down to $1,560.

Don't Spoil a Good Meal With a Bad Stomach

How to Turn a Bad Stomach Into a Good One in Five Minutes

Why do people go on suffering from indigestion and sour, gassy stomach when they know that Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold on the money back plan.

If a physician, a specialist in stomach diseases, came to you and said: "I will fix up that miserable, worn-out stomach for you or money back.

"I will make it as good as new so you will not suffer from any distress and can eat what you want without fear of suffering, or money back.

"I will relieve you of indigestion, or money back. Would you turn down his offer?

And when you are offered Mi-o-na stomach tablets, made from a prescription better than many of the stomach specialists know how to write, are you going to be narrow minded and continue to suffer from indigestion, or are you going to be fair to yourself and try Mi-o-na in the money back agreement.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are offered to you on this basis that if they do not put your stomach into such good shape that there is no dizziness, sour stomach, biliousness, sick headache, and stomach distress, your money will be returned. For sale by all leading druggists.—Advertisement.

Fisherman Finds Cod Used Stomach as Safety Vault

Tony Grandesto of the Boston dory fishing fleet, caught a cod and in its stomach he found a gold English sovereign.

Along the waterfront there is a difference of opinion. One is that the fish feared the sharks would get his money and preferred to let his own banker.

The other is that the fish picked up the coin from some ship that had been sunk by a submarine.

EBERT PROCLAIMS STATE OF SIEGE IN BERLIN

railway traffic into the city by the rebels, says a Berlin despatch, dated Jan. 8. No bread has been baked by the public bakeries since Saturday, and no food supplies have arrived in several days. Mobs broke into shops and looted them.

Field Marshal Von Hindenburg has returned to Cassel from Berlin, it was reported from the German capital today. Evidently the Ebert government refused to accept Hindenburg's offer to defend the capital against the Spartacans.

As a result of the Spartacus riots the entente has claimed guarantees from Germany for the fulfilling of financial obligations, the Deutsche Zeitung of Berlin states. The Landwehr and Landsturm will not be disbanded at once, it is officially announced.

Robert Emil Eichhorn, Bolshevik chief of police of Berlin, who refused to accept dismissal by the Ebert government, has fled from the city, said a dispatch from the German capital today.

All foreigners in Berlin are safe, said a wireless dispatch from that city today. Many have taken refuge in the neutral legations. Government troops are protecting them.

OUTBREAKS IN MUNICH.

All of the Berlin railway stations are in the possession of the government forces.

The clerical organ Germania of Berlin states that thousands of Russian Bolsheviki are staying in the German capital disguised in the uniforms of German soldiers.

The coal mining industry in the Ruhr district of Westphalia has collapsed entirely as a result of the Spartacus disorders there, demonstrations have taken place in Munich.

The Westphalische Volkszeitung, a loyal Socialist paper at Dortmund, which had been seized by the Spartacans, has been regained by loyal forces.

All of the newspapers at Duesseldorf were taken over by the radicals on Tuesday night and were forced to appear on Wednesday as "red flag" publications.

The Soldiers' Council at Leipzig has adopted a resolution demanding the immediate removal of Chancellor Ebert.

MANY KILLED BY BOMBS.

Details of the fighting about the Wolff bureau in Berlin were received today. Many were killed in the battle which raged around the building for hours. When the Spartacans refused to evacuate the place the government troops were reinforced and renewed their assault with hand grenades.

Sixty-five person were killed when government troops supported by aeroplanes that dropped bombs attacked the Spartacans at the Silesian railway station in Berlin.

Lloyd George, Bonar Law, Barnes, on Peace Board from England

London, Jan. 10.—The British Cabinet has appointed the following peace delegates for Great Britain:

David Lloyd George, Prime Minister; Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer; George N. Barnes, labor leader and member of the War Cabinet.

For the colonies: Premier Hughes for Australia, Premier Borden for Canada, Premier Botha for the Union of South Africa.

Colonel Winston Spencer Churchill is about to "come back." The former Munitions Minister, and earlier in the war First Lord of the Admiralty, in which capacity he designed and caused to be carried out the Dardanelles expedition, will enter the new Lloyd George Cabinet as War Minister, if a forecast printed in the Daily Mail proves authoritative.

The state lists Bonar Law, present Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the strongest man in the whole Lloyd George regime, as a member of the new Cabinet, but without portfolio. The predicted membership of the new ministry follows:

Austen Chamberlin, exchequer; Edward Shortt, chief secretary for Ireland; Balfour, foreign secretary; Montagu, India; Walter Hume Long, admiralty; Munro, Scotland; Brothers, agriculture; Lord Weir, air; F. E. Smith, attorney-general; Howart, solicitor-general; Andrew Weir, supply; Macker, shipping; Roberts, labor; Auckland Geddes, reconstruction; MacPherson, Irish secretary; Barnes, without portfolio.

Killed by Portland Train.

ENSIGN ARTHUR ROBBINS of Framingham, who has sued music teacher for alienating wife's affections.

Charging that while he was absent in the service of his country a Framingham music teacher used the opportunity to alienate the affections of his wife, Ensign Arthur Robbins of the United States navy has brought suit against the musician, George S. Hyde, for $20,000.

The filing of the suit for the plaintiff by Attorney Hegan has stirred Framingham.

The Robbinses, before the departure of the head of the house for service with the colors, presented the appearance of a family completely united and happy, according to neighbors.

Mrs. Robbins has brought a suit for divorce from her husband, alleging cruel and abusive treatment and non-support. Through her attorney, John E. Rice of Marlboro, Mrs. Robbins also issues a general denial of the charges made by her husband. She asks that she be given the custody of their three-year-old daughter Charlotte, and promises her sailor husband a legal battle in which there will be sensational revelations.

to the east. Therefore, it is contended, Italy should not have more land on the eastern coast of the Adriatic than the Atlantic warrants.

It is learned that President Wilson's conference with the Italian Premier was very beneficial from the American viewpoint.

It is understood that he explained that the United States would back Italy in the limit in the claim for national territory, but said that America could not accept Italy's position as to demands on the eastern coast of the Adriatic Sea.

Premier Orlando spoke in a conciliatory way, but it is evident that the question is not yet definitely settled.

Baron Sonnino, the Italian Foreign Minister, is most insistent in backing Italy's demands for territory east of the Adriatic.

President Wilson will tomorrow visit the regions devastated by the war.

On Thursday evening President Wilson held a long conference with Henry White, one of the American peace commissioners, who has been getting the French viewpoint. The President and Colonel E. M. House held another conference today.

It is now believed that Premier Lloyd George will arrive from London on Saturday, which means that the first session of the informal conference of the "Big Four" may be held on Monday. The Japanese envoys are due about January 14.

COLONEL GRIFFITH ASSIGNED TO BOSTON

His petition for a compulsory voting act, filed with the Legislature today, provides:

That every voter must vote at State and national elections if in his city or town on those days.

That only physical or mental trouble, making it impossible or dangerous for him to go to the polls, shall excuse him.

That he must file an explanation within ten days if he does not vote. The proposed act carries a $100 penalty clause.

1,500,000 DRUG ADDICTS IN THE U. S.

Bill Demanding International Control of Evil Is Introduced in House

Washington, Jan. 10. — Startling revelations concerning the constant use of drugs by not less than 1,500,000 persons in the United States and suggestions for international control of the evil, were made before the House sub-committee on appropriations during the executive hearings on the legislative executive and judicial appropriations bill, it became known today when the bill was introduced in the House.

The figures were submitted by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Daniel C. Roper and were based upon a report by a committee named last April by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. The report will be made public soon.

"The use of narcotic drugs has been alarmingly on the increase for months," Roper told the committee. "There is an underground system about which little is known by which drugs are introduced into this country. This means that we must have the co-operation of other nations to stamp out their use."

During the fiscal year 1918, there were 16,995 violations of the Harrison anti-narcotic law reported.

HAS SHATTERED LEFT ARM AS WAR SOUVENIR

Lieut. Harry R. Saftel Praises Courage of American Doughboys

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

After a year in which he saw most of the fighting along the French front, a year that made him a veteran of Chateau-Thierry, of Belleau Wood and of Verdun—a year that gave him a shattered left arm to carry through life as an ever-present reminder of the worst fighting that the world has ever known, Lieutenant Harry R. Saftel, former real estate editor of the Boston American, is at home again.

Apparently none the worse for his experience as far as animation, good humor and interesting anecdotes are concerned, Lieutenant Saftel speaks not at all of his wound, but much of the interesting things that he saw and did.

IS IN HOSPITAL.

In the private ward of the big reconstruction hospital, where they are making new men from old, where they are restoring shattered nerves, rebuilding devitalized tissues and restoring to active service arms and legs rendered inactive through many months of disuse, we talked. And we went back—back from the hospital to the blood-soaked soil of France—to the smoking ruins of fair and chateau, of modest chapel and impressive cathedral.

"I went to France just about a year ago," runs the story as the young lieutenant, pajama clad, told it to me. "For the first few weeks I went to the 2d Corps school, where we had about 400 officers enrolled, and right from there I had two weeks with the French.

"During those two weeks I had an excellent chance to witness the change of morale in the Germans. Just at that time they were making heavy advances and sending over their aeroplanes, dropping propaganda such as 'We've got you licked,' 'It's all over with you' and similar sentiments. The morale of the Allies was low, accordingly. One English officer expressed what they felt when he said, 'What are the Americans coming now for? They'll only prolong the agony.' And that was the general feeling. They believed that if the Americans did come they would come too late, or in such numbers that they would only prolong the agony for a little longer.

"From there I was transferred and, just by good luck, landed with the 102d, my own division. We were ordered to the Chateau-Thierry sector in July to the little town of Fourseches, and to Belleau Wood, which we took over a few days after it was captured by the Marines.

COULDN'T HOLD MEN BACK.

"We had two weeks then, in the trenches, and just when we were expecting the order for relief, when we might go into rest camps, we got the order to go over the top. It was the first time for me—the first time for the American boys, in fact.

"And right here let me pay my tribute to the way that the American doughboy, the real enlisted man, behaves in such a case. I had heard of the difficulties that the officers encountered in keeping up the nerve of their men, in keeping up their courage, so that they would not falter. My only difficulty, and the only one that I ever encountered, was in keeping up with my men.

"We went over at eight in the morning," continued the narrator, "at an unusual hour. Most of the advances were made before dawn, but this was done with the intention of surprising the Boche. They did not expect an attack at such an hour, but when we threw down a heavy barrage fire, it was effective.

PLATOON WIPED OUT.

"Our way led through a peavy wood—I never did see such a talek wood in my life—and we went through it entirely by compass. We didn't see a Boche until just before we got out—and then we met about half a company. They were twice as many as we were—about sixty of them and only twenty-five or thirty of us. But our men did not stop, they just went ahead with bayonets into that company.

"The Boches turned and ran. When you start with a bayonet for a German you never do have to attak it into him. You never get the chance. We took eighteen of them prisoners and sent them to the rear.

"Then we kept on to our objective, which was a farmhouse where we were told to dig ourselves in and wait. The second day the battalion behind us leapfrogged us and took the advance, while we were the support, and the third day we were told to take the towns of Epides and Trugny.

"It was here that our artillery first got our advance troops—and an officer, getting excited, threw up a flare to tell the artillery that it had our range. The Boches immediately picked it up and then turned a terribly heavy fire upon us.

"The town lay in a saucer—rather like the Yale bowl—with the Boches on a ridge on one side and our position on a ridge on the other side. From my station I could see the doughboys advancing, and it was exactly as if it was a moving picture drama that I was witnessing, except that this was the real thing."

WOUNDED BY MACHINE GUN.

But the young lieutenant, who passed unscathed through many battles, "met his" on September 26, during the heaviest fighting in the Argonne section. Caught between a cross fire of machine guns, trying to locate part of a platoon that had become detached, he was halted with a rain of machine gun bullets, seven or eight of which passed between his left side and his left arm.

His dispatch box, with maps, slung over that shoulder, was riddled with bullets, one of them went through the upper arm, snapping the bone and making the arm helpless. That was about 5 o'clock in the morning. All day he remained in a shell hole with three other wounded men, waiting the shelter up the platoon in which to creep to a dressing station. It was 3 the next morning when they got there.

That was the end of the fighting for Lieutenant Saftel. Since then—"Well, for the three months or more that I've been hanging around the hospitals," he said. "The only thing I regret is that I can't play tennis any more. The worst of it is—that I'm left handed anyway—and I know I can never serve a tennis ball with my right hand—never."

DEVENS TO GET CASUALS FROM OTHER CAMPS

Arrival of 301st Field Artillery Held Up for New Orders

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Jan. 10—More than 1,000 men, some wounded, from overseas, and others from camps in this country, are due to arrive in this cantonment Saturday or early next week.

From Camp Hancock, Va., will come 205 men; Camp Wadsworth, S. C., 225; Camp Eustis, Va., 337; Camp Greene, N. C., 51; Camp Lee, Va., 161; Camp Meade, 1 officer and 65 men.

The overseas men total 16 officers and 351 men of the American Base Cemetery Sector. In addition, there will be a number of small groups of overseas men from hospitals in and about Hoboken, N. J. All are listed as casual companies.

Preparations were made here for the reception of fifty-five officers and 1,331 men of the 301st Field Artillery today, but it is understood the men are held up at a camp in this country awaiting orders from the War Department and it may be several days before they receive word to come to Devens. Each man is given a physical examination and mustered out without delay.

WANT PARADE OF REGIMENT.

Jubilant over the success of their show, "C'est la Guerre," at the Liberty Theatre, members of the 74th Infantry under whose auspices the affair was staged, have arranged to reproduce the drama in Fitchburg at a date to be announced later. It is hoped to get Major-General McCain's permission to have a parade of the regiment, which has the reputation of being the champion infantry contingent in camp, the night the show is produced in that city.

A meeting of the representatives of the various auxiliary organizations will be held in the hostess house, Saturday, January 18, to devise ways and means of strengthening and enlarging their scope of usefulness in caring for returning overseas soldiers. Captain Ernest J. Hall, camp morale officer, will preside. James E. Keefe, representing the Knights of Columbus, is expected to read a paper embodying the work of his organization.

HARRIS TRIAL POSTPONED.

Because of the illness of Captain John W. Beckwith, one of the trial officers, the case of Captain Harry J. Harris, commander of the salvage depot, quartermasters' corps, has been postponed. Captain Harris is charged with having misappropriated government property. His home is in Brookline.

Captain John B. Wallace, who recently returned from overseas, where he commanded an infantry company, has been assigned to duty at the office of the division adjutant.

Agents of the Department of Justice, it is stated, are hot on the trail of several alleged Holshevikl propagandists who, it is asserted, have been spreading literature among the men in this cantonment.

BREAK A CHILD'S COLD BY GIVING SYRUP OF FIGS

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath feverish and stomach sour?

Cleanse the little liver and bowels and they get well quickly

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels a good, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, feverish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish, or has a sore throat give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs," to evacuate the bowels; no difference what other treatment is given.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is positive and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

Filene better values

Filene's

"The store where you get what you pay for and pay ONLY for what you get."

An angry customer often makes the best one

BACK in November a woman called up. She was very angry—with us. The cause of her anger was the proposed new Filene policy of making a charge to cover the expense of charge accounts. She called up to say she would not use her account in Filene's again.

Saturday she bought a Filene suit. Perhaps you will say she won her point when we tell you she didn't charge it to her own account after all—but she did charge it to her mother. (We do not know how they intend to split up the charge of 50c for the use of the account this month.)

A Filene better value was to blame for it. She wanted one of those good-looking oxford tailormades. But she didn't want to pay $45 for it in January, and that is the price such suits were selling for around town. Against her will she finally tried Filene's and found the suit she wanted here for $30.

She is telling this story laughingly to her friends—and she says she doesn't mind if we tell it, too.

The saving in this case, which is, of course, an actual instance, must not be set as a standard for "Filene better values." This was a very exceptional case. But good substantial savings will be found all through this store, due to the fact that we are refunding in that way the money taken in through charging for service. We want new charge accounts; in fact, we are opening new accounts daily. We believe both charge customers and cash customers will find the new system to their advantage.

Steamship officials tell us the Government permits each person to take abroad one steamer trunk, one trunk of ordinary size and two bags or suit cases.

SCOUTS TO PASS $60,000 MARK IN DRIVE

Latest Reports Show Boston Districts Forge to Front in Total

With additional subscriptions of more than $3,000 for the last day of the drive, and the reports of the big day and other reports not yet received, the Boy Scouts' campaign for funds will go well over the 100,000 mark.

The drive was extended for one day, when it was found that Boston and outlying districts had fallen about $10,000 short of the $60,000 quota.

The largest report from a single district was that from Section 6, Boston proper, comprising the wood district of the city. With a previous record of $2,550, Section 6 added $2,775 to his subscription. The generous showing of this district was due largely to the efforts of its chairman, Simon E. Hecht of No. 497 Summer street.

Reports for the last day of the drive include the following: Brookline, $290; Cambridge, $500; Lynham, $135; Malden, $200; Medford, $500; Milton, $160; Newton, $543; Roxbury, $356; Somerville, $541; Stoneham, $300; Wellesley, $400; West Roxbury, $70; Winchester, $300; Woburn, $50. Boston, by districts: Section 1, $500; two, $100; four, $25; five, $628; six, $2,775; seven, $350; ten, $849; eleven, $13; twelve $187.50; fourteen, $150.

In addition to the previous total reported of $50,000, there is a fund of $22,000 in the hands of the treasurer, Allan Forbes of the State Street Trust Company, and checks not yet counted. Tag Day, held Tuesday, is not yet reported on, but leaders are confident that its receipts will total at least $3,500.

At the last of the daily luncheons held at the Boston City Club for the purpose of making and discussing reports, Henry Davis, chairman of publicity, thanked the press for its cooperation, and a letter of acknowledgment was received by the chairman from Thomas P. Curtis, manager of the campaign. Thomas Motley, Boston chairman, and C. T. Russell, suburban chairman.

Petition to the Secretary of War to Send Soldiers Home With Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

(Signed)

DENIES CHARGES ABOUT FOREST HILLS ESCALATOR

General Manager C. D. Emmons of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, in a letter to Mayor Peters, denied emphatically that rumors of differences between the company and others as to who was responsible for the repairs to the escalator at the Forest Hills terminal⊕ to the elevated were correct. He said that the work was being pushed as energetically as possible.

SONG CONTEST JUDGES MEET TODAY

Today the first meeting of the Patriotic Song contest committee, conducted by the Hearst newspapers throughout the country, will be held in New York to arrange out of the maze of applications the candidates for prizes. J. E. Watson, the song editor, has been overwhelmed with compositions far in excess of any expectation, and out of the mass of songs submitted it is hoped a national song to express the wave of patriotism which swept over the country can be found.

It is unfortunate that many readers did not obey the rules of the contest and send in poems only. These could not be considered, no matter how well written, as one of the rules said: "The song submitted must be a new one, and must be complete as to words and music. Another rule was "a poem written for an old tune could not be considered a new song."

The managers of the contest hope to publish the first song in the competition in about three weeks. Contestants are asked not to offer their songs to publishers, until after the contest is over. If a publisher should bring out one of the songs, that song will be immediately withdrawn. The fifteen songs that the committee decides are the best will be printed in all Hearst newspapers complete with words and music every Sunday, and on the sixteenth Sunday a voting coupon will be printed in all Hearst papers and readers will be asked to vote for the best, second, third, etc., etc.

As soon as the votes can be counted the results will be made known and the prizes of $2,000, $1,000, etc., will be distributed. The judges are John McCormack, famous tenor, Lieutenant Philip Sousa, Sergeant Irving Berlin, John L. Golden, song writer and playwright, and Josef Stransky, orchestral conductor and composer.

Peace Thanksgiving in All Churches on Sunday

Affecting all churches, the Massachusetts Federation of Churches makes calls upon them to observe Sunday for prayer, thanksgiving and outspoken utterance on the terms of peace. Sunday is the day fixed by the Federal Council of Churches in America. It is to recognize the immediate establishment in the terms of peace of some form of league of free nations.

The Massachusetts Federation is an agency for co-operation and concerted action by the 2,500 Protestant churches in the State.

In connection with the observance of Sunday as peace day, the name of the committee on peace was changed to that of the committee on international relations.

Dashing Days in Olde Virginia

". . . . and dueling, too, had become all too frequent a practice. From politics to gossip, no difference of opinion was too slight to lead to the field of honour. One particular affair, which I recall, arose from an argument over the difference between two lots of Virginia tobacco."

—Memoirs of Thomas Fairfax Peyton

VIRGINIA—the tobacco that has character

Character—that says it.

A liveliness, a charm, a zest. Virginia tobacco is different. Other tobaccos seem almost flat, once you know the taste of Virginia tobacco.

Suppose you try that Virginia taste in a Piedmont—the largest-selling all-Virginia cigarette in the United States.

* * * *

"A package of Piedmonts, please."

The All-Virginia Cigarette

NOTE—In England, where Virginia tobacco has the preference, a smoker pays as much for his Virginia as for the best Turkish tobacco. Because over there both kinds of tobacco pay the same import duty. But in this country Virginia tobacco costs you less than Turkish tobacco because Virginia is grown in this country and unlike foreign-grown tobaccos carries no import duty.

WOULD DO AWAY WITH DEATH PENALTY

Bill Introduced in House Calls for Life Imprisonment for First Degree Murder

A bill to substitute life imprisonment for the death penalty in first degree murder cases, except where the person is already serving a life sentence for murder, was filed in the House today by Representative Elihu D. Stone of Dorchester, who is serving his first term in the House.

The bill provides that a person convicted of first degree murder, while already under such a life sentence, shall be executed.

The bill also provides that no life sentence murderer shall be eligible for pardon until he has served at least half of his life expectancy from the date of conviction, that is, if his expectancy of life on conviction is forty years, he must serve twenty at least.

GET HOOKSETT SUSPECT AFTER LONG CHASE

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 10.—After a chase lasting three months and extending through five States, Joseph Chamberlain was arrested in Bloomfield, Ct., and will be brought back here to stand trial on the charge of having murdered Dennis J. Clifford, aged lumberman and recluse, last October.

Chamberlain was arrested by Sheriff George A. Wooster, who has trailed him through New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, always just a jump behind the fugitive. The sheriff says Chamberlain is the woodchopper wanted in connection with Clifford's brutal slaying. The man made no resistance when arrested and refused to discuss the serious charge against him. He is forty-eight years old.

Because of the evidence of the brutality which had accompanied it, the Clifford murder stirred New Hampshire to its depths. The old lumberman lived alone in Hooksett, about a mile outside this city.

SERVICE MEN TO HELP "SALLY" AND THEMSELVES

Twenty ex-service men, soldiers and sailors, in appreciation of what has been done and what is still being done for them by the War Service Department of the Salvation Army and to enable them to earn a living other than by what they term "panhandling," have set out to raise $20,000 through the sale of two songs written by Sergeant Sam Babelow & Jeffrey, music publishers. The songs are entitled "Good-bye Sally, Good-bye Kiss" and "They're Coming Back." The two songs will be "plugged" in cafes, theaters, dance halls and on the streets by the men and the proceeds divided between them and the Salvation Army.

WILSON IS URGED TO END N. Y. STRIKE

forty-eight hours unless the condition brought about by the strike is alleviated, officials stated today.

45,000 MORE MAY STRIKE.

Meanwhile, there is the possibility of the ranks of the strikers being augmented by 45,000 longshoremen unless some sort of settlement is reached.

Thousands of commuters again found it difficult to reach the city today on account of the car situation and the consequent congestion in the Hudson tubes.

Final owners insisted today that they were in "this fight to stay." Simultaneously, however, they announced through Samuel Untermayer, president of the New York boat owners' association, that an increase in wages will be forthcoming, applicable to all not working on railroad employes, and that some concessions might be made regarding shorter hours. Also it was announced that a board of committee of arbitration, to be known as the New York Harbor Conciliation Board, had been organized. The strikers ridiculed this move, characterizing it as an "owners' welfare" proposition.

Vast quantities of milk, food, coal and other necessities are tied up today at tidewater with no bars or lighters to move them. The ferryboats in operation are insufficient to meet demands.

FOOD STOCKS ACCUMULATE.

The accumulation in the city of "perishable" food products is only enough to meet demands for forty-eight hours, officials state.

George H. Sines, chairman of the wages and working conditions committee of the railroad administration, stated today that he confidently expected the strike to be settled within forty-eight hours. It was reported from the barge office early today that there were more vessels anchored in the lower bay than ever before in the history of the port.

COHEN NAMED TO CODIFY THE LAWS

Judge Abraham K. Cohen of Boston, with an office in the Tremont Building, had been named by Governor Coolidge to succeed former Attorney-General James M. Swift as a commissioner to consolidate the laws. The former attorney-general tendered his resignation, as he found that he could not give the time to the work that he felt was necessary in the office.

Judge Cohen was born in Boston, November 22, 1869, and has always been a resident here. He was educated in the Boston public schools and was graduated from English High School. He studied law in the office of Charles L. Spring, and was admitted to the bar in July, 1894. Ford Epigrams From Auto Maker's New Weekly Paper

Dearborn, Mich., Jan. 10.—Here are samples of epigrams taken from an advance copy of the first issue of Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent, published today for the first time and to appear weekly:

"Successful persons often say opportunities are just as plentiful as ever, but they don't tell us what they are, where to find them or how to use them."

"A good man makes a good job, and a good start is made when the man and the job become good friends."

"Whenever you find a rough spot in the road of life, it is a sign that a new idea is wanted to smooth it out."

Other quotations from "Henry Ford's Own Page" follow:

"Opportunity often hides in simple things."

"Any place is a good place to start from."

"The war began in a bad condition everywhere. The world was festering with selfishness. Men of power regarded workingmen as factory fodder. Militarists regarded citizens as mere cannon fodder.

"We thought society would remain healthy with one part suffering need and the other rolling in luxury.

"And then it happened. It was as if the Almighty grew tired of it, too, and swept it all away."

8 ABOVE FOR THE COLDEST DAY OF WINTER

Today was the coldest day of the winter in Boston. The mercury dropped to 8 above at 8 o'clock this morning. Greenville, Me., and Northfield, Vt., with a temperature of 14 degrees below zero, were the coldest spots in New England. The warmest place in this section of the country was Nantucket, where the thermometer registered 14 above.

Fair and warmer is the weather prediction for tonight and the rise in temperature will be accompanied by moderate to fresh west winds, increasing to gales, according to Weather Forecaster Smith. Heavier South also predicts clear and warmer weather for the next few days, although he says the mercury will probably fail to climb beyond the freezing point.

Clear weather prevailed throughout the United States today. The temperature was lowest at the Mississippi and Missouri in the Canadian section and the upper Missouri Valley. It was nearly 30 degrees zero at the coast sections of the Gulf States and along the Pacific coast.

It was 18 below at Quebec, Canada and 56 above at Key West, Florida today. These were the two extremes of temperature recorded by the Federal Weather Bureau. The next coldest day of the Winter in Boston was December 7, when the thermometer registered 13 above.

GREATER BOSTON MAYORS TO FIGHT PETERS' PLAN TO ANNEX CITIES

TOWNS ABOUT BOSTON ALSO OPPOSE THE PLAN

Present mayors and officials of the cities and towns affected are:

FORMER MAYOR JOHN F. FITZGERALD of Boston:

I do not think the present year a good one for annexation. Certainly no towns or cities should be annexed to Boston without popular vote by all communities concerned. Most of these places have a tax rate much higher than Boston. Boston's tax rate will be big enough in 1919 and 1920 without asking on further taxpayabilities. None of the places mentioned in the Mayor's petition compare with Boston in expenditure for police, fire, schools, health and other departmental expenses, and when put in the Boston basis would add millions to the budget.

Boston must still spend millions for street construction alone in outlying districts of the present Boston; to add hundreds of miles of unimproved highways to Boston's already tremendous burdens is too much for the present at least. Boston's real estate is a serious situation no matter whether it is the small property of the every day man or the big property down town.

If I were in Mayor Peters' boots I would spend all my time in boosting Boston's port business to the end that we may do here 25 per cent of the country's business rather than the 10 per cent. allotted to us by government officials some months ago.

When we get our harbor filled with ships coming and going our railroads will be fully employed, our young men will have merchant careers opened up to them, our dilapidated business structures downtown will give way to large and sightly structures, our suburbs will see smiling rather than sad landlords, labor will be continuously employed at decent wages, living is bound to raise a family and Boston will be the finest community in the world to live in.

It is a great chance for Mayor Peters, and I hope he will go at this job and leave fooling for some future time when real estate conditions are brighter than they are now.

EX-REPRESENTATIVE JOSEPH WALKER of Brookline:

As a resident of the town of Brookline I am opposed to its annexation as proposed in the bill.

REPRESENTATIVE BENTON WHIDDEN, of Brookline:

I have not read the bill, but I am opposed to annexation.

REPRESENTATIVE GEORGE S. BALDWIN, of Brookline:

If the bill is one that would compel the town of Brookline to become a part of Boston without giving the town any voice in the matter it would seem a most astonishing thing to propose, especially in this time when President Wilson and others are demanding that the people shall determine their own destinies by their own consent. The town of Brookline has been granted a charter by the commonwealth and it has a certain right to determine its own future.

EDWARD W. BAKER, Town Clerk of Brookline:

Until the affairs of the city of Boston have been administered satisfactorily by the present Mayor, I think it would be well for him to confine himself to the questions which he is facing during his term of office.

BURTON W. NEAL, Selectman of Brookline:

I am by all means opposed to any annexation of the town of Brookline. There was a sample enough of annexation when West Roxbury, Roxbury, Charlestown and Dorchester became a part of Boston. The people in those sections have never been satisfied. Brookline should be facing during his term of office.

PAYSON DANA, Selectman of Brookline:

The town of Brookline does not want to become a part of Boston. We have our own systems, and what is there to be gained for the town with annexation? We will oppose it strenuously.

EDWARD W. QUINN, Mayor of Cambridge:

Naturally, I am opposed to the idea of annexing Cambridge to Boston. We are a city of five and one-half square miles of territory, with over 100,000 population, the home of Harvard University and the institute of Technology, and would have nothing to gain by being annexed to Boston. We have our own water supply, are rapidly motorizing our fire department, have a municipal hospital, and historically we have been famous, too. The great Washington took command of the Continental army under the famous Washington Elm. I can see no advantage to Cambridge in the annexation plan.

EDWIN O. CHILDS, Mayor of Newton:

We are absolutely opposed to the annexation of Newton by Boston. The people of Newton will fight to the last ditch. We want to keep Newton our own distinct community. When a similar measure was up before the people of Newton appeared and strongly condemned the idea. No benefit can come to Newton from the change. That is why we want to stay as we are.

JOHN E. BECK, State Senator and former Mayor of Chelsea:

Chelsea does not want to lose its identity. We much prefer to remain a separate city. It must first be proved to our satisfaction that the annexation is for the city's advantage and that the change will be beneficial, not detrimental. Chelsea does not want to be a frog in a large puddle.

GEORGE FRED ROBINSON, chairman of the Watertown Selectmen:

Watertown will fight it. We have a population of twenty-one thousand and are contented with the town system of government. We don't even want to be a city. Before the war we held several hearings relative to changing to a more limited form of town government, similar to that of Brookline. None was in favor of the city form of government. All are opposed to annexation. We can't see any reason for the change. The only advantages seems to be on the Boston side. We would rather preserve our individuality than become an atom in a large city.

GEORGE R. BEAL, Mayor of Waltham:

Waltham is not mentioned in Mayor Peters' bill, but Waltham people feel that it might be included under the clause and such others as may be deemed advisable. We recently changed our form of government to the city manager plan and it seems to work satisfactorily. The disposition of the citizens of Waltham will be to oppose any attempt to include their city in the annexation project. Of course there are two sides to the question. In a way it is unfair that Boston cannot expand, for if it could occupy more territory it would rank as a much more powerful city. Determined opposition will be found in the suburbs to the change of the type of government of the cities and towns involved.

REPRESENTATIVE LELAND POWERS of Newton:

There are not ten people in Newton who would favor the proposal. I doubt if you can find anyone. I can't see where Newton would benefit at all. It would be much to our disadvantage.

ROSCOE WALSWORTH, Mayor of Revere:

Revere is opposed to this measure to make it a part of the city of Boston. Whenever this proposition has come up the people of Revere have voted strongly against it. This attempt to absorb us in the city of Boston without a referendum will meet opposition I am sure. Personally I am opposed to the plan and I think the Revere city government will formally protest to the Legislature against it. We have just undertaken a number of improvements in our city and a change in the system of government would mean a big loss to us.

WILLIAM E. WEEKS, Mayor of Everett:

I am very strongly opposed to the bill. There are numberless reasons why the people of Everett will oppose any such move on the part of Boston. The burden of proof, however, lie on Mayor Peters of Boston to show wherein it will be a benefit to us to become a part of Boston. I can readily see that Boston will have much to gain by taking in the proposed municipalities, but I haven't yet found out where any self-governing suburb is to gain by such a move. Everett will strongly oppose the bill.

JOHN J. McLLEN, ex-Mayor of Everett:

Everett doesn't want to become Ward one hundred and sixteenth of Boston by any means. Everett has only just been put on the map within last than half a dozen years and there isn't anyone in Everett that wants to have the city wiped off the map again and be designated by some ward number. We don't all agree on things that go on in Everett, but when it comes to making Everett a part of Boston everybody will agree to fight such a move to the last ditch. We have our own government and our own institutions, and we don't want Boston to dictate what we shall and shall not do.

WINTHROP MAGEE, chairman of the Winthrop Board of Selectmen:

I think the sentiment of the residents of Winthrop is about the same today as it was a few years ago in regards to the annexation of the town as a part of Boston. At a town meeting a few years ago the people of Winthrop voted down the article whether or not Winthrop should become a part of Boston.

MAURICE DUFFY, Chairman of the Milton Board of Selectmen:

Well, we certainly have something to say in the matter of whether we want to become a part of Boston or not, and when the time comes the citizens of this town will be on the job with both feet against the plan. Look at our tax rate, $18.60, which was this year greatly reduced—in fact, being one of the lowest in the state.

We are content and happy, having all public utilities in the extensions town departments that are modern in themselves. Our schools are second to none in the State, and our police and fire departments are among the best. We have a clean town and one that is a great place to call home.

Then take our town meetings. Where can the poor man and the rich man who rub elbows with each other better themselves by being annexed to Boston?

Hyde Park was annexed to Boston and by the change who was the gainer?

CHARLES W. ELDRIDGE, Mayor of Somerville:

From a Somerville viewpoint I can see no advantage in be coming a part of Boston. I can readily see that Boston will have much to gain by taking in the proposed municipalities, but I haven't yet found out where any self-governing suburb is to gain by such a move. Everett will strongly oppose the bill.

JOHN J. McLLEN, ex-Mayor of Everett:

Everett doesn't want to become Ward one hundred and sixteenth of Boston by any means. Everett has only just been put on the map within last than half a dozen years and there isn't anyone in Everett that wants to have the city wiped off the map again and be designated by some ward number. We have our own government and our own institutions, and we don't want Boston to dictate what we shall and shall not do.

WINTHROP MAGEE, chairman of the Winthrop Board of Selectmen:

I think the sentiment of the

Boston Fourth Among Cities, Even with Annexation

Even if the annexation plan should go through, Boston would not be greatly changed in rank among other great cities of the country. She would be the fourth city in population. The following table gives the comparative populations:

Mark Down Sale

Of Suits, Overcoats, Furnishings, Hats, Shoes and Boys' Clothes

That may sound like a pretty strong statement, but the proof of it is right here in the crystal-glass cabinets for any man to see who cares to look. You needn't be an expert on fabrics, or tailoring, or anything else. You only need two good eyes, or even one, to tell you that here's a Good Clothes event without an equal.

So conspicuously superior are the advantages we offer the man or young man who needs something good to wear that we are serving an unprecedented number of new customers during this Sale—men who are discovering that here and here only can they find the style, fit and quality they want, and at much lower prices, as well.

Our regular prices on this stock were remarkably low. The reductions now in effect bring you a further saving. And while we hope and expect that clothing will be lower—sometime—any garment you buy here now will more than earn its cost and keep before you see any more values as good.

WOULD GET SOLDIERS TO WORK ON FARMS

Columbus, O., Jan. 10—An effort will be made by the Ohio employment service to interest men who are leaving the demobilization camps to go back to the farm, if they come from the farm, or to take up farm work if they have no other job in view. American farms will have to feed the world, it is argued, and this class of labor is to be especially sought in this State.

Boston Merchant Sees Solution of Industrial Problems in Development of Agriculture

By P. B. MAGRANE,

In what respect have we been lacking in the upbuilding of New England? It's in neglect of the New England farming industry, one of the greatest assets we have. Encourage the farmer financially in draining the wet lands, clearing our sadly-neglected uplands, reforesting our farms into three-acre or more fields, and thereby getting modern farm machinery, help them in raising money at a moderate rate of interest on mortgage loans, establish for them public markets within five miles distance free and unrestricted, help them to buy their needs in large quantities, pass laws that will protect them in sheep-raising, encourage them by offering prizes for the best vegetables, fruits or [illegible] cattle, colts, horses of every class and at every [illegible] men of large means to enter with spirit into this work; prohibit killing for food of female calves for a term of years, then the poor man and rich man can get milk, cream and [illegible]

HUSKY MIDGET BOXERS HEAD BILL AT COMMERCIAL A. C.

By NICK FLATLEY.

BOBBY JOSEPHS, whose imbroglio with Barney Snyder makes a New England bantamweight scrap a near future possibility, as you can find out by reading one of the letters appended, is the high light of the Commercial show down Bowdoin square way tonight. Bobby doesn't assault Barney, though the club wants the pair, but rather takes on Frankie Brindisi, a New Haven product.

Frankie is one of the rough, tough boxers, who carry a pretty good battering ram along. Thus far he has shown much pleasure polishing off a lot of the hard eggs of his class. He is the type best fitted to give the hard-hitting Josephs a real battle, provided fear of the advertised K. O. wallop doesn't make him too cautious to cut loose.

The Josephs person likewise is a wild sort of fighter, who is willing to take one so he may give one, and, for action, this particular pair shape up as worthy opponents. This scrap will go ten rounds, as will the quarrel between Young Proto of New Haven and Charley Mitchell, Braintree flash, and Billy Carney of New Bedford and Young Vose of East Boston.

A six-rounder between Jack Bowen of Dorchester and Jimmy Brennan of East Boston will ary the ld of the performance. Like the majority of the club's programs, there's a bunch of potential fighting lying round loose.

Some English Good Sports, Says Soldier

THE sporting editor has landed us a letter referring to the epistle from the American sufer who so harshly criticised the English sporting spirit some time ago in these columns. Sergeant A. J. Hadvigar writes from Camp Devens and admits that Jackie Toland is no match, but claims that his opinion is a bit unfortunate, inasmuch as a pin-blame on the entire English sporting public.

"No doubt there are true sportsmen in England," says the sergeant, "In fact, many of them, but they are not in evidence; therefore causing them to be a minority with the fats of unsportsmanlike action thrust upon them. They submit in silence to all of their brothers' baby talk and thus allow themselves to get the reputation that they now hold in all the enlisted service, not only the United States, but also Australia and Canada."

Chick West Chucks Dell at the World

CHICK WEST of Holyoke, who admits that he's the best welterweight in New England is starting a campaign for the title in that class, he informs me. He's willing to meet anybody, anywhere, at 142 pounds, ringside. Chick, who has begun a lot of the good boys in his class, has been away from the game for quite a while, but coming back, now that he has a son and heir—born a couple of days ago—to support.

West has a couple of bouts booked, one with Kid Furber at Pittsfield, and another with Paul Doyle of Westfield. He has likewise been promised a match in Toronto next month with either Jack Britton or Ted (Kid) Lewis. But he wants a flock of bouts before that time to fit him for a shy at the welter title.

English Promoter After Best American Talent.

THERE'S a lot of boxing talent over on the other side of the pond, as well as here, judging by the signs. Billy Gibson, who now been authorized to sign up Jim Moore for Tommy Dillon, manages of Fred Fulton, is steering a club. The local boxer has been offered something like $1,000 for his bit of the affair.

While in more than accidence to get another shot at Moore, who beat him in a three-round bout at the International service meet, and were a sufficiently big purse offered would surely come to this country for the fray. It's certain that American boxing fans could furnish as much collateral as the English and it's about time some of the big promoters started offering things.

As regards the middleweight match, there is no earthly reason why a couple of American battlers should go to London to settle a title when a dozen places in this and would make it as lucrative. The size of the purses offered has not been made known, though it is certain that the bouts will go twenty rounds.

McDonald, who runs the bouts over there, wants the Gibbons-O'Dowd match for June and the other for any time he can get it, the sooner the better.

In Re That Josephs and Snyder Affair.

IT looks more and more as if two of our best little fighting chaps are getting really peeved—through their managers — and that some club will get a bang-up scrap by signing these argumentative bantams, Barney Snyder and Bobby Josephs.

Bobby's agent claimed that Snyder was heavier than his 'scription, and besides didn't want to meet him. Now, Jackie Williams, who directs the fistic fortunes of Snyder, comes to bat as follows:

"Snyder is a big-limbed bantam, easily weighing over 118 pounds. What Carr is forcing Snyder to do is absurd. Why should he talks about Snyder being bigger than Josephs? I think Josephs is a light-middleweight, he is running a short time ago to make the featherweight limit and is now hoping toward bringing about the match by putting up any size forfeit Mr Carr may mention for appearance. Seldom should Josephs be found in at 120 pounds ringside, and not him winner-take-all. I hope to hear something in the near future from Mr. Carr, as two of the local clubs want the match."

Britt to Battle Brock in West.

FRANKIE YOUNG BRITT, New England's premier lightweight, has been matched once more with Matt Brock of Cleveland. This time the pair will fight in Minneapolis. Miss Millie Dollan manages of Fred Fulton, is steering a club. The local boxer has been offered something like $1,000 for his bit of the affair.

When the two last fought Britt, after outpointing Brock and getting the popular decision, was knocked out after the bell had rung to end the bout. Neither Brock nor Matt Hinkel, who was refereeing the scrap in Cleveland, heard the ultimate gong.

KNOW ANY FUNNY HORSE STORIES? HERE'S A CHANCE TO MAKE $10

WHAT'S the funniest sport story you know? You must know one—everybody does. If, just now, it happens to be about horse racing, you have a chance to get some money by telling about it.

The American offers weekly prizes of $10 and $5 for the funniest stories submitted. Different sports for different weeks. The followers of the sport of kings now have their fling.

Anybody who has ever attended "hoss" races has seen or heard something funny. Here's a chance to let the world in on what amused you and also get into a competition that may pay.

Make your stories brief—not more than 200 words—write on one side of the paper only, and send them to the Feature Sport Editor, American.

Plenty of Speed Shown in First Heat by Horse Race Story Tellers

They're off in the American's horse-story contest. The boys were quick to answer the "bell" and it looks as if the contest is going to prove just about the most popular one of them all. Here's some of the early contributions:

THOMAS J. MELIA, No. 8 Pond street, Amesbury:

At the Rochester Fair a few years ago a jockey came along with an old "skate." A man in the crowd told him that he could fix up the animal for $10 so he could win the race, which was a free-for-all.

He gave him the $10 and the veterinarian began to tinker with the old "skate." First he cut a slit about two and one-half inches in the old horse's flank and then he got a bicycle pump and inserted it into the slit and began to pump, and the horse began to swell, and when the M. D. stopped pumping he was some slick looking animal.

He next stuck a piece of court plaster over the slit and told the jockey to get on his back. The fellow injected a lot of red pepper up the horse's nose just as the signal to start was given.

You never saw such a burst of speed. He was away ahead of them all and the crowd went wild with excitement. Coming down the stretch the "skate" was fully ten yards ahead of the rest. Just as he was passing under the wire there was a terrific explosion, and they have never heard of seen the horse nor jockey since.

* * *

THOMAS SAVILL, No. 17 Danforth street, Jamaica Plain:

One day while rubbing my father's horse, a fellow trotted up behind me with a fine looking animal.

"Do you know anyone who has a nice horse?" he asked.

"Yes, right here," I answered.

He let go of his horse and came nearer to me, telling that his horse could beat mine in a two-mile race.

"What say if we try?"

The race started and all went well until we came to a brook and I tumbled in. My opponent was far ahead, but his horses slipped, and when it got back on its feet I was up by his side.

When we reached the finish line both horses were head and head and tail to tail. I leaned forward and held an apple in front of my horse's nose and he put out his tongue and won the race.

JAMES P. GORMAN, No. 53 Rosedale street, city:

My friend Mack was unable to follow the ponies at Clyde Park, Brookline, one day, so he gave some money to a chap named Brown to place on Miss Boston.

Brown was a good fellow, but he had a slight impediment in his speech. That night Mack glanced at the sporting page of the American and found that Miss Boston had lost. Judge of his surprise when Brown came rushing up to him, at the office the next morning, with a smile on his face.

"H-hallo, M-Mack," he said, "h-here's y-your m-money."

"Why, how's that?" asked Mack.

"I thought Miss Boston lost."

"S-so s-she d-did!," replied Brown, "b-but t-they a-stopped h-placing b-bets soon f-after before I-I could [illegible] excited)

No. 35 Sheridan Avenue, Medford.

On an eastern Maine fair ground, the 2:30 trot was being pulled off. Eight horses had scored eight or nine times. The starter was disgusted, and sang out, "Any man out of line is fined $10."

As they came down under the wire they were all perfect but one, and as the starter yelled "Go" the old fellow threw his mane across the track and jerked at the legs of his vis-a-vis.

"We can't get away this time, Judge, I lost my cap."

BURNS CAPTURES ROUGH NUMBER FROM HERKEL

Cyclone Burns gave John Heskel quite a bunch of weight along with good trimming in their catch-as-catch-can wrestling match at the Bradford Opera House. Burns was tip-top form and won in straight falls, time, 25:30 and 26:30, respectively. Herkel's work was very rough, but the Cyclone eventually tamed him down.

Patsy McCarthy showed what army training has done for him by seeing John Klinck in a one-fall match, in 20:30. Folks on the stage claim it was an "inside fight Jeff" that won for McCarthy.

WALSH WANTS $15,000 FOR PAL MOORE'S END

New York, Jan. 10.—Tommy Walsh of Chicago, manager of Pal Moore, Memphis, Tenn., bantamweight, today notified Billy Gibson, representing George McDonald, London fistic promoter, that he would accept $15,000 for Moore's end in a fight with Johnny Wilde, flyweight champion, in London on Derby night, June 5. Walsh also insists on one-third of the moving picture rights.

He agreed that Moore would make 118 pounds, ringside, the English flyweight limit, and the bout would be twenty rounds.

New Swimming Record

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Perry Mcgillivray of Great Lakes, lowered the world's record of 1:03 2-5 for the hundred-yard back-stroke by covering the distance in 1:07 4-5 in the Illinois A. C. pool, during the twelfth annual interscholastic swimming meet.

Hartley Defeats Bogash

Lowell, Jan. 10.—Pete Hartley, New York welterweight, won a close decision over Lewis Bogash of Bridgeport, Ct., in twelve rounds, at the Crescent A. C. In the semi-final Johnny Marto of Boston outpointed Frank Mullins of Lowell.

Harvard Seven Makes Bow

Harvard's hockey team plays the Boston Hockey Club seven in its opening game of the season on the Charlesgate Rink tomorrow afternoon.

FRAZEE ANGLING FOR SLUGGING OUTFIELDER

Harry Frazee did not run over from New York last night as expected and now Dan Considine, who is running matters at Fenway Park, is not looking for the busy magnate until next Monday or Tuesday.

From New York comes word that Frazee is frantically trying to secure a Class A outfielder, one who can hit, field, run the bases and do everything else, right-hander preferred, to fill Duffy Lewis' shoes.

Frazee tried to get Happy Felsch from the White Sox, but Comiskey gently, but firmly, told him he didn't have a chance.

Clyde Milan of the Senators is obtainable, it is pretty well understood, but he's a southpaw hitter and that's the reason no particular effort is being made to land him.

Hooper and Strunk both hit from the off-side of the plate. So does Gilhooley, who was landed in the New York swap. He's a right-hander Barrow has ordered Frazee to get him, and it can be plainly seen that the Sox are badly in need of such an addition.

Lieutenant Harold Janvrin, Red Sox's former utility infielder, is back in Boston from Camp Bowie, Texas, and has secured his discharges from the army. Janvy wants to retain his old berth with the Fenway troupe, he declares.

"I hear I may be sent to Washington," said Janvy today. "Well, I'm hoping Mr. Frazee asks for Walter Johnson in exchange for me. Then I know I'll stick with the Sox."

WAR WORK HOLDS TWO HARVARD STARS BACK

Two of the "Harvard Cubs," athletically speaking, are all at sea. The "Cubs" was an organization of nineteen Harvard lads, who were in training at Toronto for the Royal Flying Corps, and under the guiding eye of Benjamin A. Gould of Toronto, who acted as "Cub Master."

The Stillman boys, Eli and Carl, of Wellesley, all-around athletes, left their studies at Harvard freshmen last May to prepare for service in the Royal Flying Corps.

Only recently they were discharged from service and returned to college, to find that they are ranked as outsiders of freshmen—the limited dropped freshmen—and therefore ineligible to take part in any form of intercollegiate athletics.

The pair are fine hockey players, but are prevented from coming out for the team under the present Harvard rulings. The fact that they jumped into the fight with both feet doesn't appear to cut any ice at Harvard, since they were not at Cambridge when the colleges put on the Spring examinations for service men. Their friends of this pair, as well as those of a number of other Harvard athletes affected, hope the Harvard authorities will fix matters up so that they will not lose anything by their haste to get into the big scrap.

William J. Bryan on "THE RAILROAD PROBLEM"

MR. BRYAN says that the railroad problem is the largest reconstruction proposition now confronting the nation. It represents enormous capitalization—reaches into every part of the country, and the number of its employes amounts to nearly one-tenth of the male voting population of the country.

THE PLAN which Mr. Bryan advocates does not provide for the control of the entire system by the Federal Government, but, instead, the ownership and operation of a trunk-line system sufficient to give each State an outlet for its products and an inlet for its purchases.

FORE RIVER WORKMEN WANT CHEAP CAR TICKETS

The workmen at the Fore River plant are up in arms against the Bay State Railway. They claim the Bay State has not issued any special workmen's tickets, and that no additions have been made that tickets will be issued.

Petitions are being circulated, protesting against the present 40-cent ticket and the ten-cent cash fare charged by the Bay State. They will be presented to the Public Service Commission.

Peace and Food Are the Common Sense Barriers Against Anarchy

EVERY dispatch which comes from Europe emphasizes the perils and perplexities of the real situation.

While the potentates and diplomats are wasting time in politics, three menacing and terrible figures are looming larger and larger upon the horizon of events.

Foremost of this trio go Hunger and Cold, and behind them stalks Revolution, with the Red Flag held high in its defiant grasp.

Long ago the American predicted that revolution would be the certain result of a conflict prolonged beyond the endurance of Europe's masses.

And here stands the prediction fulfilled to the letter.

The censorships still keep from Americans all the unpleasant facts that can possibly be suppressed, but in spite of them some inkling of the truth peeps out between the lines of correspondence intended to be published, while private information conveys to those who receive it news that the public does not get—and the consensus of all this information is that revolt and revolution are everywhere in evidence in Europe.

The incredibly foolish invasions of Russia, against which the American so earnestly protested, have been too feeble to coerce the Soviet Republican leaders and just irritating enough and serious enough to incite the Soviet government to call a huge army to the colors and to determine upon making defensive war against the allies; and in retaliation upon invading eastern and middle Europe; upon extending financial and military aid to the Red Socialists in Rumania, Bulgaria, Poland, Austria, Hungary, Bohemia, Italy and Germany; and, finally, if driven to it, upon the serious inauguration of a war intended to unite the proletariats of every nation against the rich and privileged.

It is the French Revolution all over again, upon a stupendously greater scale.

The irony of events was never more remarkably exhibited, for all the hopes of the ruling and financial classes in England, France and Italy are now based upon steadying and maintaining Germany as a buffer State between them and advancing Bolshevism.

No one can have failed to notice the complete change in the tone of the allied press. The Teutonic people are no longer spoken of as "Huns" and "Boches."

And the correspondents are unanimously engaged in reporting how well-behaved are the grown-ups and how numerous and engaging are the children.

The London dispatches dwell more and more upon the necessity of feeding the German people quickly and generously.

Articles are freely passed by the censorship emphasizing the wisdom of putting Germany upon its feet commercially, so as to give England back a good customer.

And here and there are hints that the return and restoration of the Kaiser as a constitutional Emperor would be the most stable solution of Germany's political chaos!

The fact is that there has arisen in Europe the exact situation which Lord Lansdowne predicted.

The common peoples of Europe have become so weary of war, they have been subjected to such suffering and such horrors, the burdens heaped upon their backs have been so intolerable, that they are everywhere in an ugly and mutinous temper.

Also they everywhere know their own strength and how easily they can overthrow the pillars of the ancient edifice of society.

The revolutionary feeling is running high at this very moment in France and in Italy—and if Germany goes the way of Bolshevism, there is a strong possibility of the Latin nations going the same road.

There is a dangerously widespread sentiment of revolt in England, too, made very evident by the fear or inability of the government to punish the mutinous troops who have defied orders at Dover, Folkestone and even in London during the past seven days.

Added to these conditions are the chaotic conditions in eastern Europe, where the Jugo-Slavs are threatening war upon Italy, where the Ruthenians are fighting the Poles for the possession of Galicia, where the Bolshevist armies are besieging and capturing such capital cities as Kiev, Riga and Vilna and are steadily moving upon Poland, and toward Silesia and East Prussia, and it is clear that something more than speeches must be resorted to quickly.

Because it is quite within the possibilities that if the Peace Conference puts off its meeting too long it may not have any place in Europe to meet.

We do not mean that as a pleasantry, either.

We mean it exactly as we say it—seriously and earnestly.

The last persons who perceive revolution are always the ruling classes, and especially the leaders in political power.

It was that way in the first French Revolution and in the two succeeding revolutions; it was that way in both English revolutions; it was that way in the Russian revolution.

Louis XVI., Charles X., Louis Napoleon, Charles I., James II., Nicholas II.—each of these monarchs was the last person in his realm to perceive that his authority had perished and that his very sacred person was in danger of the common jail and the common executioner.

The onlooker always sees the moves in the game far earlier and far more certainly than the players.

And as it was in the past, so it is in the present.

We are in the midst of the greatest upheaval and revolution the human race has ever experienced, and men who are styled scholars, thinkers and statesmen walk about amidst all this threat and turmoil of popular unrest and revolt and seem to have neither eyes to see nor ears to hear what is going on all around them.

They chatter the same old formulas and phrases of a past that is as dead as Rameses, and make their bows and speak their declamations and repeat their copy-book moralities and platitudes for all the world like another Congress of Vienna, while beneath their feet and above their heads and all about them sound the mutterings of revolution's coming earthquakes and tempests.

The only visible hope of staying a revolution that will wreck Europe from one end to the other lies in the prompt assembly of the Peace Conference; in the prompt provision of food for the masses in all the suffering States of Europe; in the prompt ratification of a peace that abandons the old methods of spoils; in a prompt agreement upon disarmament, in a prompt recognition and guarantee of self-government for every people desiring self-government—in short, upon the guarantee of justice, mercy, liberty and happiness to every people, so far as those high ideals can be guaranteed, and in the rescue of the suffering millions—regardless of race or nationality—from the bitter grip of famine, from the agonies and torments that make desperate and savage the mildest and most orderly peoples.

The only prevention of revolution is peace that is real peace, and not an armed truce that prolongs all the burdens and many of the most bitter sufferings of war, without any of the patriotic excitements and stimulations which make war tolerable and bearable.

Let us have peace and have it quickly.

The soldiers want to go to their homes.

Their peoples want their soldiers in their homes.

That is true of every army and of every people.

The world is sick of war, sick of talk, sick of endless diplomatic fiddle-faddle.

The world wants rest and peace.

And unless the peoples get what they want soon, they will take things in their own hands and get what they want in their own way.

CHESTNUT TREE IS RIGHT

Under the spreading chestnut tree the village smithy stands.
The blacksmith strong. Ah, where is he, that man of mighty hands?
The door is closed. The forge is rust. No sparks fly in barrage.
The smithy's business is "bust" by auto and garage.

CAMBRIDGE "CODE"

A Boston newspaper telegrapher with a checking account at a Cambridge bank—as he says—was playing with a collie while waiting in line at the paying teller's window. It was not his dog. Soon a young woman approached, smiled and said sweetly: "Thank you for entertaining my dog." Then she walked out, followed by the collie, while our telegrapher wondered just how she meant it.

ADAM WOULDN'T HAVE "BIT"

These sky-high apple quotations are fine for speculators. But the real time for a prohibitive price on such fruit was in the Garden of Eden.

THE JUDICIAL WARPATH

Nathan A. Tufts, district attorney of Middlesex County, entertained friends of bench and bar at dinner. One of the speakers referred to the fact that Chief Justice Aiken of the Superior Court, one of the guests, lives in Greenfield, at the eastern end of the Mohawk trail. William H. Lewis of Cambridge, former assistant United States district attorney, a later speaker, observed:

"I, too, have met the Chief Justice on the Mohawk Trail of Justice. And, believe me, it is an Indian trail. I never knew what I was going to get from him, the tomahawk or a haunch of venison."

BILLY GALE OF NEWTON

A naval man, visiting friends in Allston, said his janitor was "a Billy-galer." The host queried: "What's that?" "Why," replied the naval guest, "he lives in Newton. The wind usually blows a gale in the Newtons, so they call Newton persons 'Billy-galers.' Thought everyone know that." This naval man does not live in Newton himself. But he is just off a battleship. So he ought to be a judge of wind.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Protest

Editor Boston American:

I wish to enter a protest against your printing such false statements as occurred in an article on Saturday, January 4, paper, signed by Eva A. Cassell. The article appeared under Letters to the Editor, and was called "Cure for Influenza." The statements made by her are absolutely incorrect, as any physiologist can readily tell you. It is not fair to the general public to print such misleading and untrue articles. I would like to see the professor of physiology in Harvard read the article. I know it would disgust him and he would back me up in my protest. Yours for truth,

R. E. STANTON,
Laboratory Assistant,
Department of Physiology,
Brown University.

(We are very glad to hear from Mr. Stanton of Brown University on this subject. This column is maintained for the expression of opinions on all sides of the subjects discussed, and the more authoritative the source from which a communication comes, the more pleasure it gives us to offer it to our readers. — Editor Boston American.)

Patter and Chatter

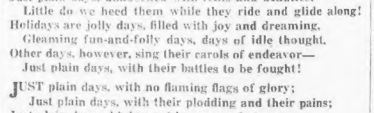
By William F. Kirk

Plain Days

JUST plain days, with their big and little duties;
Just plain days, with no blossom, with no song;
Just plain days, unadorned with frills and beauties,
Little do we heed them while they ride and glide along!
Holidays are jolly days, filled with joy and dreaming,
Gleaming fun-and-folly days, days of idle thought,
Other days, however, sing their carols of endeavor—
Just plain days, with their battles to be fought!

JUST plain days, with no flaming flags of glory;
Just plain days, with their plodding and their pains;
Just plain days, shining not in song and story,
Bare of bloom and barren as the desert's yellow plains.
Dragging days and lagging days, days of loveless longing,
Still we rise to meet them on the battlefield of Time,
And from each some blessing we may gain while onward pressing—
Just plain days with their little grades to climb!

JUST plain days, with their striving and their sorrows;
Just plain days, with the lessons that they bring;
Just plain days, giving way to plain tomorrows,
Down the Road of Ages in procession wandering!
Dreary days and weary days, days of doubt and groping,
Meagre days and eager days, days all drab and dun,
Each a time for trying while the Birds of Time are flying—
Just plain days, with their battles to be won!



Reconstruction Notes

The patriotic women of America have set a movement on foot to shorten skirts for the Summer of 1919. Some of the more prudish matrons have decided to wear their 1918 bathing suits for street costumes.

Married men throughout the country are thinking of wearing their 1918 wardrobe an extra season. Their wives have given their hearty consent.

Girls who wish to reconstruct their last Summer frocks will not be interfered with by their last Summer beaus.

Charming back-to-nature hats will be worn this Summer by many of the debutantes. These hats will be made of crepe de chine and plaintain leaves, and in order to conserve hatpins, chewing gum will be used.

During the reconstruction period all manner of padding will be dispensed with, in men's coats, ETC.

We shall notice much reduction in the days of Reconstruction!

Today

Bad Time for Strikes.
Good Time for Thought.
Leave Anarchy to Europe.
Here We Should Build.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

There is a strike in the harbor of Buenos Ayres, many thousand miles away, and a strike in the harbor of New York, close at home.

There are strikes innumerable in Europe, ranging all the way from sulky demonstrations in the English army and navy to bloody battles between classes in Russia and Germany.

It is a poor time for strikes if they can be avoided in any way, especially here in America.

Only the most ignorant workman and most selfish employer can fail to see how serious the situation is all over the world. The nations are recovering from a gigantic surgical operation, with loss of blood, money and security such as the world has never known.

Workers must not think that war problems are important and dangerous to the prosperous class only.

They are infinitely more dangerous to those that work, to their children and wives.

If you disorganize industry, stop work, close factories, you only DIMINISH the prosperity of the well-to-do. You do not hurt their families. They have always something left. But you do hurt the workmen's families. And if the strike is used recklessly it may be used to put thousands, or even millions, out of work and to keep them out of work for many a month.

Intelligent workers know that after the war the country and its industries are like a sick man rising from his bed, trying to get on his feet again.

The fact that certain profiteers have stolen billions does not justify any worker in striking recklessly and hastily against the mass of honest, constructive business men trying to keep work and industry going.

Such men are entitled to the co-operation of workers. If they do not get it there's going to be great trouble in this country, and the workers will be the chief sufferers.

This is not advising any man to endure deliberate injustice. It is written by one who has been habitually prompt to see and to advocate the side of the workers, who contribute so much to civilization and get so little beyond the food necessary to keep them working.

The workers should remember that during this war, while labor has been more highly paid than in all the world's history, the prosperous man has paid the biggest taxes in the world's history. For once the rich have borne their share of government cost. The load was not shifted, as usual, to the backs of little people. All the very prosperous were made to give up more than half of their income. And at a time when workmen were getting more than ever, many of the most prosperous men were actually paying to the government more than the total amount of their income, because the government would not let them deduct certain losses.

This country, like every other in the world, faces this problem and question:

"Are we to recover from the war or fall victims to it and face years of hard times, of dangerous dissatisfaction?"

The European countries are in great danger. Some have already succumbed to anarchy and devastation. When these things come the prosperous move to a better neighborhood, the poor, the workers, stay behind and suffer.

There is no reason why this nation should fail in its task of reconstruction if all the citizens will work together as they should, like brothers, helping each other after a big fight.

Employers should strain every point to prove generosity, justice at least. Many of them have done this in a broad spirit of good citizenship.

Workers should not be misled by evil advisers. They own this country, they are interested in it. They should work through law-abiding organizations to get their share, and as big a share as they can justly claim.

But this is not the time to demand the last ounce, and these days of the highest wages known are not the days for reckless interruption of business. Labor leaders that are seeking to re-establish themselves after the great shock that the world has received.

Nations of the world are like a lot of men knocked down by the terrific explosion of war. If they ever they are trying to regain their feet and carry on the world race of prosperity, commerce and higher civilization.

The first nation to get on its feet and start running, stretch out swiftly, will win the race, with great reward and prosperity for all the citizens.

Ours should be the nation first to rise, to start first and go most rapidly forward. And it will be first, if workers and employers realize that the United States is the country of both—its problems their problems, its future good times or bad times also THEIRS.
